KING JOINS RESOURCE COMMERCIAL REAL ESTATE

INDIANAPOLIS - Resource Commercial Real Estate has hired Brad King as an Advisor in its Industrial Services group. King will work closely with current Resource industrial specialists, Blair Kiel and Jon Shuel

King has more than 15 years of experience in project management, planning and zoning, economic development, and regulatory assistance. He will use his expertise to provide tenant representation, owner representation, incentive procurement, and zoning compliance assistance.

King joins Resource Commercial after serving as an associate with Dury Investment Group, an Indianapolis-based commercial real estate company.

King has worked with the City of Indianapolis, the Indianapolis Economic Development Corporation (IEDC), and the Indy Partnership. As Project Manager, Marketing Manager and finally Director of Motorsports and Sports Initiatives for the IEDC and Indy Partnership, King helped to create and implement a regional approach to economic development, fostering some of the highest job creation and retention in the City's recent history.

"Brad is a terrific addition for us. His skills and expertise will complement our existing professionals, providing a nice integration for our clients." said Resource President, Tim O'Brien.

"I've been a student of the Indianapolis real estate market for many years," said King. "I've been lucky to work with various agencies, companies, and, most importantly, smart people who have taught me well."

King earned a BA in Professional Writing from Purdue University in 1992.
